Meyercord Tobacco Control Solution
Direct-to-Distributor
Simplifies Tax
Stamp Distribution

The Current Challenge

Some state agencies rely on a distribution model that requires government employees to order, receive, inventory, securely store, process payments, and issue tax stamps to authorized distributors.

States must allocate resources to receive, manage, secure, license, issue and distribute tax stamps—while bearing all the risk.

The Ideal Solution

Ideally, states would maintain control of their tax stamps while reducing administrative costs and increasing efficiency. Meyercord offers a distribution model that allows state Directors/Administrators/Comptrollers to electronically monitor and control stamp management from a single computer terminal.

Stamps are manufactured and distributed directly to state-authorized distributors from Meyercord’s NASPO Class II secure facility in Carol Stream, Illinois. Our proven Direct to Distributor model provides a chain of custody that makes stamp management easy for state agencies.

Direct to Distributor provides significant cost avoidance to the jurisdiction, including:

No requirement to have an employee receive shipments

No 'accountable officer' to assume financial liability for stock

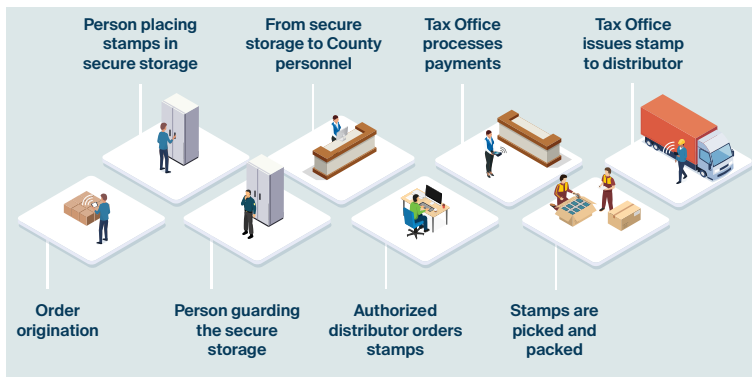

No need to establish and maintain a secure storage facility

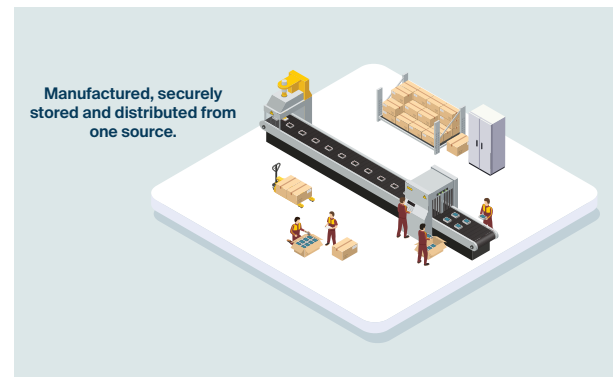

No need to have an employee issue stock to distributors

In addition to automated adherence to issuance policy and financial terms, Direct to Distributor maintains chain of custody at the stamp level by assigning ownership to the distributor at shipment.

Typical Distribution Model: State is Responsible

Direct to Distributor: State Maintains Control Without Risk

Proven Results

Since we introduced our Direct to Distributor program in 2005, no state has ever reverted to an Accepted Distribution model.
